

April 9, 2013

Nissan Chemical Industries, Ltd.

Notice Regarding Construction plan of Advanced Material Research Laboratories (tentative name)

Nissan Chemical group supplies products and services all over the world in the three business fields, performance materials (electronic, inorganic, and organic materials), life science (agricultural chemicals and pharmaceuticals), and chemicals.

In order to keep up with a technological innovation of customers in the fields of performance materials, we have decided to establish Advanced Material Research Laboratories (tentative name) in Funabashi, Chiba. Consequently, we aim to utilize our management resources and accelerate development of unique performance materials.

The investment amount will be about US$ 34 million, and the construction period is scheduled from this April to July next year.